

Advanced Cycle Intersection Design

Wellington, 24 July, 2019

The NZ Transport Agency and ViaStrada are offering one-day industry training courses on planning and design for cycling, based on the recently ratified Cycling Network Guidance and cycling levels of service research.

This interactive workshop focuses on advanced intersection design for cycling, particularly issues around signalised intersections and roundabouts, and the use of separated cycleways. Participants received a series of introductory presentations on how to provide for cycling at intersections and then work in groups on four real-life site problems.

The workshop is based on recent advancements in cycling planning and design understanding, using examples from a wide range of recent New Zealand projects and best practice internationally.

The workshop will benefit anyone involved in designing cycling facilities at intersections; participants should ideally have either previously undertaken the introductory cycle planning/design course (or equivalent) or have sufficient previous work experience in cycle facility projects – please indicate your experience in the form overleaf.
